Notes for WILLIAM RAMSAY:
(Care has been taken to substantiate the information provided here with birth, marriage, death, census and family records. If the reader finds any errors or has additional details, please contact: BBRamsay1@aol.com.)

The marriage record of William and Janet shows that both were living in Dunfermline in 1785. William was employed as a coal miner at the Berrylaw Colliery which, according to an 1856 map, was located about two miles west of Dunfermline. The birth records of their children show that the family lived variously in Dunfermline, Torryburn and Dalgety. They may have eventually settled in Dalgety parish since their last three children were born there. The parish consisted of six villages, including Fordell which had a large colliery where William may have worked.

Adelaide Frick Ramsay Clarke recalled in a letter that she had been taken to Scotland on a visit when she was only six months old in 1892. She was later told by her mother that William and Janet had lived in Fordell Colliery.

5. ROBERT[2] RAMSAY (WILLIAM[1]) was born Apr 4, 1792 in Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland[31], and died Feb 8, 1832 in Scotland. He married ELIZABETH MORRIS May 10, 1816 in Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland[32], daughter of WILLIAM MORRIS and CHRISTIAN SNADAN. She was born Apr 23, 1793 in Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland[33], and died Mar 1, 1862 in Scotland.

Notes for ROBERT RAMSAY:
Marriage: see a photo of Robert's marriage on this site. It reads that on April 22, 1816, "Robert Ramsay Coalhewer in the parish of Dalgety and Betty Morris of this parish gave in their names for proclamation in order to marriage and being three times proclaimed and no objections made they were married on 10 May 1816." Robert's brother William was married the same day.

Occupation: "In 1813 Robert, while mining in the Earl of Elgin's coal pit, was so severely injured that he could never thereafter perform hard labor. Fortunately, he had been a regular and a studious fellow and while he was only twenty-one at the time of the accident, he was already ranked as a mine boss. Manual labor, therefore, was not necessary for him and owing to his good standing in the community, he was able to get sufficient financial backing to set himself up in the mining business on leased property." (Childers, p. 15)

His descendant Margaret Ramsay Jones, of Mt. Pleasant, PA, wrote that Robert "owned the coal mine called 'White Rashes' at Cowdenbeath, Fifeshire, Scotland."

Family: Robert died just two years after the birth of his youngest child. He never lived to see any of his grandchildren. Still, "he accumulated sufficient of the world's goods during his brief life that his family never lacked the necessities and his children received at least a limited education." (Childers, p. 15)

Robert's descendant, Adelaide Frick Ramsay Clarke, maintains that Robert and Elizabeth were buried at Dunfermline Abbey, Dunfermline, Scotland, on the left side of the Margate entrance. However, when I husband and I visited the Abbey in 1997, we could not find the graves even though we walked through the entire cemetery and bought the book that lists the graves. On the other hand, some of the stones are unreadable and damaged.

Notes for ELIZABETH MORRIS:
Of the eight known children of Robert and Elizabeth, seven survived to adulthood, marriage and parenthood. Although Robert died at an early age, Elizabeth lived long enough to know of the birth of most of her grandchildren. Of Elizabeth's children, only William left Scotland to emigrate to America. The rest likely never left the county of Fife, judging by the places their children were born. All her daughters married miners and they worked in the collieries in the parishes of Auchterderran and Dalgety, as did her son Morris. William carried the mining tradition to the United States. Robert and Elizabeth had at least 46 grandchildren.

Elizabeth's descendant, Adelaide Frick Ramsay Clarke, maintains that Robert and Elizabeth also had a son Thomas, nicknamed Tam "who lived in Tam Hill Scotland. Some of the family are still there," Adelaide wrote in a family record. However, I can find no record of a Thomas Ramsay born to the couple. Thomas Ramsay is also not in the notes of Helen Ramsay Walter.

Margaret Ramsay Jones states that Elizabeth died in 1865. I will have to check this with the Scottish Register, but in general, I have found a number of dates provided by Mrs. Jones to be in error.

11. WILLIAM[3] RAMSAY (ROBERT[2], WILLIAM[1]) was born Mar 26, 1819 in Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland[72], and died Apr 16, 1885 in Larimer, N. Huntingdon Twp, Westmoreland Co, PA. He married ELISABETH SHARP Nov 16, 1839 in Dalgety, Fife, Scotland[73], daughter of WILLIAM SHARP and BETTY CRAVEN. She was born Dec 25, 1819 in Clackmannan, Clackmannan, Scotland[74], and died Aug 13, 1889 in Morewood, Westmoreland Co, PA.

Notes for WILLIAM RAMSAY:
Margaret Ramsay Jones gives conflicting information on William's birth date, birth place and marriage date and place. She states he was born March 25, 1819 in Clackmannan. I have his christening record only, and that took place in Dunfermline. She also gives a marriage date of January 1840 in Fordell, Fifeshire, but their marriage certificate gives the date and place listed here: Nov 16, 1839 in Dalgety. Mrs. Jones confirms that they had ten children, five boys and five girls, four of the children dying in infancy.

William was the pioneer in his family. He "talked with his brothers about the possibility of going to the colonies; he even mentioned America, this land about which such exciting stories were being told. But his brothers didn't incline much to William's idea." (Childers, p. 23.) William, Elisabeth and their five children first came to America in 1852, landing in New York after a six-weeks sailing and then settling in Port Perry, Allegheny Co, PA. The deaths of three of their children there are believed to have motivated them in part to return to Scotland in 1855.

The lure of increased miner's wages during a Pennsylvania coal boom drew William and his family back to America in 1863. William first worked at Hay's coal mine near Six Mile Ferry, Allegheny Co, PA. At that time, William and his sons Robert, William and Morris were all working together at the same mine. William then accepted a better position and moved to Larimer, North Huntingdon Twp, Westmoreland Co, PA. The 1870 US Census finds the family living in Larimer when William was 50. He died there.

Margaret Ramsay Jones' account follows: "[In Scotland] Grandfather William Ramsay was a contractor and sank coal mines in Fifeshire. He sank the 'William Pit,' the 'Humbug,' the 'Cardenden,' the 'Hyndlop,' the 'George's' and others."

"Grandfather William Ramsay and his entire family sailed from Glasgow, Scotland, April 23, 1852. on their first trip to America, and landed in New York in June. They went by rail from New York to Port Perry on the Monongahela River near Pittsburgh, PA, where they remained for two years. They then moved to New Brighton, PA where they lived for six months before moving to the mines near Beck's Run, not far from Homestead, PA where they stayed until 1855, when they all returned to their native town of Dunfermline, Scotland."

"In 1863 the entire family returned to America, this time sailing from Liverpool to Philadelphia [see the manifest elsewhere on this site. It lists the family as passengers of the Packet Ship "Tuscarara," Master Richard M. Dunlevy]. Before returning to America, our father, Robert Ramsay, married Janet Erskine, who joined the party of emigrants."

"The entire family returned to Beck's Run, a small mining town in the Pittsburgh District, but in August 1864, they, all except our parents, moved to Larimer, PA., a coal mining town on the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad, 18 miles east of Pittsburgh."

The family's second immigration conflict with the data provided by William's son, George S. Ramsay, on the 1900 US census. It states that George, who was born in Scotland, had been living in the US for 44 years, having arrived here in 1858. Since he would have been only a year old at the time, his parents would have to have come with him. However, George's younger siblings, Christina and Maria were also born in Scotland. Perhaps the person who gave the census information made a mistake.

Notes for ELISABETH SHARP:

Her children: "The Ramsays who came in 1852 had to live in a bare frame structure [in Port Perry]. It could never be made into such a home as Elisabeth Ramsay had always known, and wanted again. Of sanitation, there was none. Sickness led to epidemic...taking its toll especially of the children. As the years passed, Elisabeth Ramsay bore three children in America, her adopted land of high hopes and dashed ambitions. Each of the children died after a few months of life and sickness. Medical science at Port Perry was on a par with the town's sanitation and the babies were the sacrifice on the altar of ignorance." (Childers, pp. 27-28) "William and Elisabeth made their third sorrowful trip to the little graveyard in Port Perry. Beside the two babies already buried there, they laid a third, a little girl." (Childers, p. 30)

There's some confusion about the three births Ramsay's biographer describes. They were probably Peter, May and May. Peter was born in Scotland, not America, and would have been about a year old when the family came to America. As yet, no official records have been found to document the births of May and May. Their names exist only in the notes of Mrs. Walter. Margaret Ramsay Jones notes that William and Elisabeth had five daughters and five sons.

Following the return of the family to America, daughter Christina would die at the age of eight and daughter Maria would die at the age of twenty-five following childbirth. Perhaps Elisabeth found some solace in the successes of her sons in the mining industry.

26. x. MARIA RAMSAY, b. May 18, 1862, Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland; d. Feb 8, 1888, Westmoreland Co, PA.

12. MARGARET JANET[3] RAMSAY (ROBERT[2], WILLIAM[1]) was born Jun 6, 1821 in Dalgety, Fife, Scotland[86], and died Unknown in Dalgety, Fife, Scotland. She married ROBERT PENMAN Oct 17, 1840 in Dalgety, Fife, Scotland[87]. He was born in Dalgety, Fife, Scotland, and died Unknown.

Notes for MARGARET JANET RAMSAY:
My attributed name of Margaret Janet needs to be explained. First, the Scottish birth record of this child states her name is Janet. There is no Scottish record of a Margaret being born to Robert and Elizabeth. However, a Scottish marriage record and a reliable family record states this child's name is Margaret. I believe Janet and Margaret are the same person.

My conclusion is that the name on the original parish record is in error: that is, Janet should be Margaret; or, there was a first and middle name for this child and only one was recorded at birth. I would find this explanation suspect had I not seen this same situation occur twice in our family's German Church records which are comparable to the Scottish parish records. During this period of time, there were no birth certificates: church records were the only source of all births recorded.

I have combined the names here so that anyone looking for a birth or marriage record for this child will have a better chance at finding a birth record for Janet as the child and Margaret as the wife (the name by which her children and other descendants knew her, which is why I have put that name first). In addition, in the footnote on the source of this child's birth I have stated that the birth record indicates the child's name as Janet. Lastly, in the lineage note for Margaret Janet, I have stated that she is "also known as" Janet Ramsay.

Robert's daughter, Margaret, writes that he was born in Crossgates, a tiny village I have visited. His birth is actually registered in the parish of Dalgety.

Robert and his son Erskine [designed] many inventions used in the mining industry. He was superintendent for H.C. Frick Coke and Coal company for 16 years. He was also pit boss and superintendent at Shafton Coal company and superintendent for Carnegie Coke at Monastery Coke Works at Latrobe. He received a patent on the Ramsay Ram for pushing wagons on and off the cage...." (Helen Ramsay Walter)

Robert and his wife were not forgotten by their illustrious offspring Erskine. 24. MORRIS[4] RAMSAY (WILLIAM[3], ROBERT[2], WILLIAM[1]) was born Jun 4, 1848 in Fordell, Dalgety, Fife, Scotland[163], and died Dec 29, 1892 in Pittsburgh, Allegheny Co, PA[164]. He married SADIE MARIAH HELMAN GREER May 15, 1870 in Westmoreland Co, PA[165], daughter of JACOB HELMAN and MARIA LONG. She was born Jan 1, 1853 in Larimer, N. Huntingdon Twp, Westmoreland Co, PA[166], and died Jul 12, 1927 in Mount Pleasant, Westmoreland Co, PA[167].

Notes for MORRIS RAMSAY:
Birthplace: Fordell, a village located in the parish of Dalgety, Fife, had "an extensive colliery...employing nearly half the population," according to Westwood's Directory for the Counties of Fife & Kinross, published in 1862, when Morris was 14 years old. My husband and I visited Fordell in 2000. The local pub owner greeted us and his patrons told stories about the mines in Fordell that have now been exhausted. The only evidence of the once-thriving colliery was the former superintendent's cottage. The miners' pitiful housing had long since been torn down. The graveyard adjacent to the church at Mossgreen was in poor condition since most of the stones were either too weathered to read or had sunk into the ground. Giant black bulls grazing behind a stone wall seemed to be the only guardians of the cemetery. There was, however, a spectacular view of the downward slope, of about five miles, to the shores of the Forth and the magnificent bridge that spans the waters there.

Mentor: Morris was a mentor to his nephew, Erskine Ramsay, who became a millionaire. Erskine's biography makes numerous references to the part Morris played in his nephew's life, including his serving as a math tutor to the boy who would eventually donate over five million dollars to educational and other causes.

Occupation: "Morris Ramsay, after completing a common school education, began learning the trade of machinist at Dunfermline, his birthplace, and completed the same at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, in which city his parents located upon their arrival in this country in 1852. From 1864 to 1869 he worked in the mines of the Westmoreland Coal Company, and in the latter year was appointed mining boss at the Shafton coal mines, in which capacity he served for ten years. He then removed to Houtzdale, Clearfield county, Pennsylvania, and was superintendent of the Kittanning Coal Company's mines for two years. In 1882 he became superintendent of mines at Morewood; he was transferred two years later to the position of mining engineer for the Frick Coke Company, his services in this capacity being of great value to his employers. In 1886 he was made superintendent by the above company of their coke plants at Morewood, Warden, Dillinger, Alice and Tarr's.

The ovens at these works numbered 1151, of the eight thousand owned or operated by the Southwest Coal and Coke Company....Among the works of Mr. Ramsay's engineering in the Connellsville coke region are: The Rist tipple, the air shaft at Morewood, the Trotter plant and the new Henry Clay coke works near Broad Ford, Fayette county, Pennsylvania." (Jordan, pp. 334-335) Morris and his brother Robert also held management positions during the Morewood Mine Riot in 1891.

His death: In Henry Clay Frick: An Intimate Portrait, by Martha Frick Symington Sanger, the author notes about great-grandfather's death: "The H.C. Frick Coke Company's Morewood Superintendent, Morris Ramsay, who had named his infant daughter after Frick's wife, Adelaide, was fatally injured in a carriage accident....Although Ramsay was sent by Frick to a Pittsburgh hospital, he died in surgery. Frick served as a pallbearer at Ramsay's funeral and offered financial aid to his devastated widow." (p. 231) For some years, this version of Morris Ramsay's death was an accepted family fact and as shown above, found its way into print.

However, in 2002, I obtained a copy of Morris' death certificate from the Allegheny County coroner's office. I was stunned to learn that the cause of his death was listed as cancer of the pancreas. In September 2002, I returned to Greensburg and searched through the microfilm of the then-weekly Tribune-Herald. I did not find an obituary but did find two other mentions. "Morris Ramsey [sic], Superintendent of the Morewood Works, was taken to Dr. Sutton's private hospital, Pittsburg, to have an operation performed in hopes of benefiting his health, which has been on the decline for some months. The operation will be performed Thursday." This item was reported on Jan. 4, 1893. The following week, the paper reported that Morris had died while undergoing an operation. Then in January 2003, Marjorie Ramsay Laing sent me two obituaries from the Mt. Pleasant Journal that clearly state that Morris died of cancer. How the carriage accident story got started I do not know but it was clearly a myth.

Morris Ramsay died at 11 P.M. on Dec. 29, 1892 at Dr. R.S. Sutton's private hospital at the age of 44 years, 6 months, 25 days. He had filed his will only a month previously. Pictures of Morris Ramsay and his family, home and colleagues may be viewed on my website (http://familytreemaker.genealogy.com/users/b/e/c/Barbara--BeckRamsay/index.html) in the photo section. In the text section, there is the full text of his biography, obituaries and his will.

Notes for SADIE MARIAH HELMAN GREER:
Parentage: Sadie's natural parents were Maria Long and Jacob Helman. Sadie's mother died two days after giving birth to her. Apparently, her father felt that he could not care for her properly. The Greers, next door neighbors of Jacob in the 1850 census, agreed to raise Sadie as their own since they were childless. The 1860 census shows Sadie, aged seven, living with the Greers in Larimer, N. Huntingdon Twp, Westmoreland Co., as Sadie Helman. Her natural father had moved elsewhere by that time. Years passed, and during that time Sadie was provided with every advantage including her own piano, recalls Marjorie Ramsay Laing.

George Greer was born in 1817 in Westmoreland Co, PA, and died after 1880. His first wife, Sadie's adoptive mother, was Sarah Ewing, born in 1827 in PA, and died on Nov. 18, 1869. In the census for 1870, the year Sadie was married, George Greer, recently a widower, listed his occupation as "gentleman" and declared his property was worth $10,000. (George would marry twice more, to Harriet Baughman and then after her death, to Hannah Unknown. Hannah died after 1900 in Greensburg, PA.)

On the occasion of Sadie's marriage to Morris, George Greer legally adopted Sadie, then just over the age of 17, so that she could be his heir. After being told that the man she had known as a family friend was indeed her natural father, Sadie became reacquainted with the Helmans. Jacob had since remarried and fathered several other children. The Helmans, Longs and the Greers had all lived in the Larimer area and each family accepted Sadie equally, it was said. (Sadie's death certificate lists her father as George A. Greer.)

Marriage: As her husband pursued his ascending career in mining, Sadie was left to care for the children. Of her thirteen children, only nine were alive at the time of the 1900 US census. Two babies were stillborn. Two more young daughters died in a diphtheria epidemic. In fact, within a two-year period, Sadie had lost three children, her first grandchild and her husband. Prior to those deaths, the family had at least enjoyed a sense of luxury in the Victorian "Big House" in Mount Pleasant that still exists today. The current owner, a non-family member, is said to have restored the house consistent with the period in which the Ramsays lived there.

Moving: The Ramsay family bible, through the record of births of the children of Sadie and Morris, shows clearly where the family lived in PA: Shafton, Penn Twp, Westmoreland Co., 1870-1878; Houtzdale, Clearfield Co, 1880; Loyalhanna, Derry Twp, Westmoreland Co,1881; Monastery, Unity Twp, Westmoreland Co.,1882; Trotter, Fayette Co, 1884-1887; Morewood, E. Huntingdon Twp, Westmoreland Co., 1887 onward.

Sadie and Morris had 40 grandchildren, only two of which were born during Morris' short lifetime. Their first grandchild, Morris Byers Ramsay, died just a few days before the death of Morris.

The census data at the turn of the century shows that Sadie was living with daughters Alice and Adelaide at 242 Walnut Street, Mount Pleasant. Sadie had owned her home, free of mortgage, for seven years. "Mrs. Sadie M. Ramsay, widow of Morris Ramsay, resides in a comfortable home in Mount Pleasant, is highly esteemed in the community, and enjoys the acquaintance of a wide circle of friends." (Jordan, p. 335) Sadie continued to live with Adelaide until her death that occurred at 3:30 P.M. on July 12, 1927. She had outlived her husband by 35 years. She died at the age of 74 years, 6 months, 13 days.

Her obituary read: "Mrs. Sadie Greer Ramsay, widow of the late Morris Ramsay, died late Tuesday afternoon at her home, 729 Walnut Street. She had only been sick since the previous Saturday. Deceased was 74 years of age on last New Year's Day. She is survived by one brother, William Helman, of South Greensburg and by the following children: William Ramsay, Bethlehem; Mrs. Sadie Eaton, Brownsville; Mrs. John L. Shields, Walnut Corner; George Ramsay, Bradenville; Mrs. Christena Stahl, Brownsville; Robert Ramsay, Greensburg; Miss Alice I. Ramsay, 729 Walnut Street; and Mrs. John P. Clarke, Jr., Dormont. Her descendants numbered 40 grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren. Funeral services will be held at the home at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon followed by internment in the family lot in the Union cemetery located at Irwin."

Notes for ELIZABETH SHARPE RAMSAY:
The unknown child is based on the 1900 US Census which indicated that Sharpe had given birth to two other children who were no longer living.

John Ramsay Clarke states that Sharpe met her husband, then a National Guardsman, when the Guard was called to restore order during the miner's strike at Morewood. Another relative, Kitty Saunders, states that Emmor was stationed with Co. K of the Morewood Mines in Waynesburg, PA.

After Sharpe died, Emmor, or Junior as he was called, was taken to live with his grandmother Ramsay in Mt. Pleasant for a time while his brother Morris lived with his father.

The man who listed his occupation in 1900 as a "capitalist" was by 1930 an accountant, and must have been somewhat successful because the couple retained the services of a servant. Living with the couple, who by the census account married six years after Sharpe Ramsay Saunders died, was Emmor's son of the same name, his young wife and first two children.

Notes for ROBERT ALEXANDER RAMSAY:
I knew him as Papap, the most influential person in my life. He and Nana raised me as their own child. Papap had the most wonderful sense of humor, sometimes to the point of being devilish. He once handed me a biography of Mary Queen of Scots and told me to read it and learn from it. Mary and I shared a headstrong temper, he said, and he didn't want me to meet a similar fate. Robert loved the bagpipes, had a jacket made from the Ramsay plaid, and was intrigued by Scot lore.

Robert was a talented draftsman, surveyor and civil engineer who became the City Engineer for Greensburg, Westmoreland Co, PA. He embodied the "Labora" part of the Ramsay motto, working well into his old age. Even in his seventies, Robert often walked from his beloved home at 443 West Pittsburgh Street where he had lived all his married life, down one long hill and up another, to the City Hall which he could never quite let go of after his retirement. Robert's father Morris must have been a man of great intuition because Morris willed then eight year old Robert "my library and all my surveying instruments and my gold watch and my book cases and writing desk," all of which he used his entire life.

The 1920 US census shows that Robert's family had retained the services of a live-in Bohemian servant girl. I recall the house had bay windows, five bedrooms, a separate dining room and parlor and a cavernous attic filled with memorabilia. Off the back porch was a room once used to bake bread. The garage had a quaint door that slid on rollers to admit the entrance of a Packard or Dodge. The backyard was filled with pine, buckeye and plum trees and there was a black granite marker that proclaimed "Ramsay."

After the death of his wife, Robert's son Morris sold his home to a pharmacist who promptly tore down the Victorian treasure and erected an unsightly pharmacy. I watched the day the wrecking ball demolished the home, the timbers of which had been so strong that an attic fire merely singed them. Morris had put his father into a nursing home in Ligonier where Robert's constant request was to go home. His health deteriorated and he died at 4:45 P.M. on Jun 29, 1970 at Maginnis Hospital in Ligonier. The final entry in the Ramsay family bible regarding Robert was that he was buried at 1:30 P.M. at the age of 85 years, 9 months, 13 days.

Notes for NINA MARIAH ALLSHOUSE:
In Nina Allshouse is the convergence of two German families, the Allshouses and the Kunkles, who emigrated from Germany and landed within one day of each other in Philadelphia, PA nearly 140 years before Nina's birth. Nina's third great-grandfather Henry Allshouse, who sailed on the Judith, arrived in PA on Sep 15, 1748. A day later, Nina's third great-grandfather Johannes Kunkle, who sailed on the Patience, arrived at the same port on Sep 16, 1748.

"Nana" had the blue eyes and facial features of her German ancestors. She told me that during an illness as a girl, she lost her hair and when it grew back, she resolved not to cut it. Until she died, she kept her hair long and would dutifully roll it up each day as would befit a matronly woman. She was a genteel woman but scorned modern inventions. In the early sixties, she still used a wringer washer, hung her sheets out to dry--even in the winter--and insisted on washing the second story windows. Why she had household help I don't know because she insisted on doing everything herself.

Nina told stories of the great flu epidemic of 1917-18 when family members would knock on the walls by their beds to signal to one another that they were still alive. She also had marvelous sayings for every occasion such as: "If you don't listen, you'll have to feel; You made your bed, now lie in it; Murder will out." Every Sunday after church there was a large meal in the dining room followed by a visit to some relative or a drive in the country. Nina had taken china-painting classes at nearby Seton Hill College and her china cupboard was filled with delicate teacups and other intricate pieces.

Nina and Robert were married when Nina was 22 years old. They visited Washington, D.C. on their honeymoon.

The couple would later have five children and 14 grandchildren, one of which was myself. Nana and Papap raised me from infancy.

Nana, who had been born at 12 A.M. in 1888, died at 12:01 A.M. in 1967 in Westmoreland County Hospital, less than half a block from the home in which she had lived her entire life. After an 11 A.M. service at the Kepple Funeral Home, she was buried at the historic Brush Creek Cemetery where her grandfather, Samuel Allshouse, had been one of the originators of the Brush Creek Church and an early director of the cemetery. She was 79 years, 5 months, 4 days old.

Morris may have been married three times total. I can't find any record of Morris on the 1920 census under his name or a similar-sounding name anywhere in the US. He may have been using an alias. I know he was not living with his father in 1920. I did find him on the 1930 census as indicated.

Notes for LAURA RUTH TAGGART:
Email from Laura's granddaughter Laura J. Little: I guess it must have been pretty interesting when Mother and Uncle Gene were born. The babies were born at home, and neither the doctor nor my grandmother knew that she was expecting twins until after Uncle Gene was born and the doctor said, "There's another one in there!" What made it worse was that when people asked Grandma what she wanted (since she already had a boy and a girl), she'd jokingly say, "Oh, I haven't decided yet, so I think I'll take one of each!" When that's exactly what she got, she had a hard time convincing people that she wasn't joking again.

He married MARION JUNE GRAHAM Jun 5, 1935 in Morgantown, WV*[290], daughter of ARTHUR GRAHAM and GERTRUDE WILKINS. She was born Sep 11, 1914 in Wilkinsburg, Allegheny Co, PA[291], and died Jul 4, 1997 in Jeannette, Westmoreland Co, PA[292]*.

Notes for ROBERT ALEXANDER RAMSAY:
Birth: My father was born on the birthday of his grandmother, Sadie M. Greer Ramsay. A picture of Robert being held by his mother is in the photo section on my website: http://familytreemaker.genealogy.com/users/b/e/c/Barbara--BeckRamsay/index.html. Robert, like his brothers Donald and Morris, and his father, Robert, became a civil engineer. However, Robert had planned a career in the military from which, after nine years, he was persuaded to leave by my mother. It was a choice he always regretted, he told me, and it is no wonder since his military position afforded him power and the chance to travel. Afterwards, his worldwide travels were limited to ham radio transmissions, for which he had a passion.

Military Service: Because of the fire which destroyed countless records of military personnel, I have been unable to find much documentation of where he served other than the following: entered service Jan 13, 1941, Army Serial Number 0-405-951, Signal Corps; graduated Command & General Staff, Ft. Leavenworth, KS, 1943 [with high honors]; returned from latest tour of overseas service August 7, 1945 after spending 18 months there; in an application for extended active duty on January 16, 1948, his rank was Lieutenant Colonel while immediately prior to processing for relief from active duty, he was a Major; in 1948, the exact designation of unit or office to which he was last assigned for active duty was Headquarters Second Army.

According to my mother, Daddy joined the Army in 1939. At some point, he was assigned to Ft. Monmouth, NJ. At that post, when Daddy was a captain, Mother saw Betty Grable and Betty Davis, who were entertaining the troops. There she also met generals Patton, McArthur and Marshall. When Daddy was sent overseas, it was to China. He was there for two years and was involved in the Salween Campaign, according to mother. A US Army web site states the initial Salween Campaign lasted from 11 May to 30 June 1944. My aunt Marjorie says that Daddy contracted malaria during his service.

In China, Daddy made a lifelong friend of a Chinese Major General, Chien Tai. Among Robert's medals was the Special Breast Order of Yun-Hui with an accompanying citation signed by Chiang Kai-shek, then Chiang Chung-Cheng, President of the National Government of the Republic of China, on Dec. 23, 1946. The medal was awarded for his outstanding achievement while serving in China. Pictures of the medal and my father sitting astride a camel in front of the Sphinx in Egypt are also on my website.

My parents had 15 grandchildren.

His death: My sister Gretchen and I cared for my father while he was dying of cancer. Robert died at 8:36 P.M. on Veteran's Day, which he would have felt was appropriate. He died at the VA Hospital on University Drive, Pittsburgh, Allegheny Co, PA. Funeral services were held at 11 A.M. on Nov. 15, 1967 at the Robert J. Kepple Funeral Home. A military funeral was held at St. Clair Cemetery with an honor guard. He was 55 years, 10 months old, and was buried in the war veteran's section of the cemetery.
